In addition to the delivery of a print copy of the honors thesis to the Registrar's Office for the College Archives, all students normally will deposit a digital version of their honors thesis into Wheaton's Digital Repository. Please read this document carefully before agreeing to preferred level of access with your signature.

Questions? Contact Zeph Stickney Helmreich (x3712) in the Archives. Bring the signed form to the Registrar's Office along with both the print and digital versions of your thesis on Mon., May 16. For questions regarding print only access to your thesis, Faculty Advisors should contact Zeph Stickney Helmreich (x3712) in the Archives.

Title of Honors Thesis:

The library preserves and provides levels of access to your honors thesis in these ways:

- Every honors thesis print copy is available to members of the Wheaton College community and the general public on site in the College Archives during regular Archives hours (9:00 a.m.- 4:30 p.m., Mon.-Fri.).
- You may choose to RESTRICT the digital full text version of your honors thesis available only to members of the current Wheaton College community (those on campus at any given time) by depositing the thesis in the Wheaton Digital Repository, our web based, open access compliant institutional repository for Wheaton-produced digital content. It is a permanent archive.
- You may choose to make the digital full text version of your honors thesis OPEN and available globally via the Wheaton Digital Repository to better serve the scholarly community (https://digitalrepository.wheatoncollege.edu/handle/11040/693) (#1 below).

Your honors thesis is discoverable in two ways:

- Every honors thesis is cataloged (or described) in our HELIN Catalog. A search in the HELIN Catalog, as well as in WorldCat, will indicate that your thesis exists and provide a description. A link to the digital copy record is included there, as well. These descriptions are discoverable via Google Scholar.
- Every honors thesis deposited in Wheaton's Digital Repository is assigned metadata that are searchable using any Internet search engine. Metadata may include title, author, abstract, and subject headings.

When your thesis is archived onsite and in the Wheaton Digital Repository, your copyright protects against unauthorized use of the content. Although you have certain rights and privileges with your copyright, there are also responsibilities (see reverse).

Please review the following statements and identify that you have read them by signing below.

The original signed copy of this form will be bound with the print copy of the Honors Thesis. A notice that this form exists will be included in the Digital Repository version.

Circle number and sign for the access level option desired:

1. [OPEN ACCESS] I have read the above statement and agree to make my honors thesis available to the Wheaton College community and to the global scholarly community in our permanent digital archive, the Wheaton Digital Repository (DSpace) or its successor technology.
